

Fir Cottage

- Thought to have been built about the same time at the New Inn, consisting of stone, cob & bricks with 3/4 thatch roof & 1/4 slate
 - Was originally 2 cottages. We have 2 front door keys - 1 for what is now our lounge and the other for what is now our dining room.
- The original stair in the 'lounge' are long gone but we now have what is charmingly called a Coffin Hole. A section of the bedroom floor comes up with a false beam and ceiling boards. Was very useful for when we moved in 18 years ago as there is no way any of our bedroom furniture would go up the stairs in the dining room. And no guesses for why it's called a coffin hole!
 - Being a grade 2 listed building there is no double glazing apart from the bathroom. The kitchen, bathroom & utility rooms were added about 1985, covering the rear yard. The same happened with Westbury next doors, coving up the yard with a well that was used by both cottages.
